

Laboratory 3 Reflection

For this activity, the Profile Banner was actually the easiest for me to design because the wide layout felt just like creating a title block for an engineering plan. I applied my specific branding elements by sticking to the Blueprint Blue and Signal Coral colors, which really emphasizes that connection to the civil engineering field I am entering. To make sure the hierarchy was clear and readable, I used the League Spartan font for the main headlines so they would stand out strong against the dark background. The challenge I found was in the promotional image, where I had to be careful not to overload it with text. I learned that making social media graphics is really about balancing that "Industrial Precision" style with the right sizing so it looks professional on any screen. Hopefully, by keeping this consistency now, I can present myself online with the same structural integrity that I aim to bring to my future projects.
