

Laboratory 2 Reflection

When I made my branding, I was inspired by the program that I am undertaking which is civil engineering. The pallet, as I named them, represents what you would see in civil engineering the sky blue or blueprint blue, the signal coral, which is the color of the engineering field a tone of orange. It's like I'm marketing my own and my soon-to-be profession (hopefully). In making the logo, the challenge I had was actually designing it. The loaded templates on Canva were so many that it could overload me and overwhelm me, and so I decided to stick back to simplicity and just get 2 words of my name, which was KC. I hope that when the future comes, the branding kit would help me be identified for what I do, and what I can do. Using this branding kit in the future I plan that it stays true to who I am and to what I believe.
